Around the World in 80 Days

Last weekend, MLC Forum took audiences on a hysterical ride in Around the World in 80 Days, directed by Caleb Schmeige (LLHS) and produced by Jacki Adams (MLS). “This show was so hilarious!” said actress Megan Wohlrabe (Peyton HS-CO). “I felt so blessed to be with all these talented guys. They are comic geniuses!” With no set and few props, it’d be easy to think the play would be hindered. Not in the slightest! “Working with minimal props and stage directions provided a lot of freedom for improvisation and creativity,” said actor Austin Becker (homeschool), “and that was a crucial part of what made the play both fun to be in and a successful performance.” In fact, the creative use of props—from neglecting to use the door when entering a “room” to using a grocery cart for an elephant—got nearly as many laughs as the characters themselves. Overall, Around the World in 80 Days proved to be a great way to build friendships, get some laughs, and glorify God in the process. “Everyone is so passionate about using their gifts for the glory of the Lord, and that is just very encouraging,” said Patrick Loroff (LLHS). “Plus, we all got to wear cool moustaches!”

The Cribbage Champ

Last Sunday, cafeteria manager Jack Minch hosted a student cribbage tournament. Amateurs and veterans alike gathered to contend for the grand prize: $20, a trophy, and, of course, bragging rights. Ben Zietlow (GPLHS, pictured right, playing Sasha Bolwerk, KML) quelled the competition, climbing the cribbage ladder to win it all—without losing even once.

Spreading the Love

“As president of the Augustana Dorm Council,” says Anne Jeffery (West Hills HS-CA), “I have pushed for more involvement with the community.” Anne regularly organizes trips for Augustana women to the Oak Hills Nursing Home in New Ulm, as she feels community involvement is a great way to get away from the stress of college life. On Saturday, February 11, accompanied by Stephanie Rehbaum (LLHS), Amber Flunker (FVL), Rachel Veith (LLHS), Catherine St. John (HVL), and Karla Opperman (North Branch HS-MI), Anne helped the residents of Oak Hills prepare for Valentine’s Day, making valentines to give to their grandchildren or to decorate their own rooms.
